MONROES DOWNFALL.

HE IS LURED TO HIS RUIN BY A WO. MAN.

A Grandson of President Monroe Be comes a Tramp and Has to Beg Food in Canton-He had a Bridant Future. Which Was Wrecked by Mary Duke,

"Friend, you'll confer a great favor it you'll give me enough money to buy some-thing to eat. I'm as bungry as a bear." The speaker was a tramp, and the per-son addressed was a News-Democrat reporter. The time was about 9:30 last night and the scene the corner of Fourth and Market atreets.

The reporter took the traveler into a restaurant and treated him to a square supper. While the meal was being bresupper. While the meal was being bre-pared Archibald Mooroe, for that was the tramp's name, gave the history of his life and the detaits of his downfall. Monroe was born near Ashland, Hanover county, Va., on April 5, 1852. He is a lineal descendant of President Monroe. In 1875 he graduated from the law department of the University of Virginia. He located in Ashland, and his father, long since dead, pushed him rapidly forward in State posities. He became such a shrewd politician that on one occasion be came near capturing the Gubernatorial nomination. All this brilliant prospect has led but to disgrace.

MONROE WAS A WILD MAN.

In 1880 Monroe located in Richmond, Va., for the purpose of practicing his profession. He was, in every sense of the word, a fast man; but his dash, his nerve and his captivating manners and above all, his superb physique, made him the principal object of attraction wherever he appeared. Standing five feet ten, and having a handsome and intellectual face and a well monuted head. tellectual face and a well moulded head, with its glossy, jet black hair, Monroe soon became a familiar figure on the streets of Virginia's capital city. It was a sbrewd man who could work Monroe for his dollars, but before lovely women he threw up both hands and surrendered.

In the spring of 1881 a pretty little blueeyed woman drifted into Richmond in search of money and money she found, although her methods were not those of respectability. One night at a ball in "Marble alley" Monroe met the little woman who was named Mary Duke.

The Duke woman who was familiarly known as "Tiger Mary," at once set to ensnare Monroe. He soon became madly in love with Mary, but whether she ever really loved him or not is a question. At any rate she adored him with an adoration that only his money could cool. Monroe, with $2,000 in his pockets, shared her ments one night. When awoke the next morning, was gone as was also toney. Her departure took the sunapartments When his money. Her departure took the sun-light from Monroe's existence and he took to the cup that inebriates. He lost his practice and soon drifted into the gut Then his friends cut him right being of a proud nature, he was

About six months after Mary's disappearance there came in Monroe's heart a purning desire for revenge. As he was penniless he started out on foot to try and the woman who had blighted his life. For nine long and weary years he has ramped all over the United States in tramped all earch of Mary whom, he says, he will on sight. That's a very plausible tale, but you'll have to give me some proof of its correctness before I'll believe it," said the reporter when Monroe had finished his

By way of reply Monroe drew a package from a coat pocket and handed it to the reporter. The package contained a num-ber of relics coaspicuous among which was a newspaper clipping reciting his downfall and a letter written by President

Monroe to his father.

Monroe says it is useless for him to begin the battle of life anew and that his only desire is to wreak vengence upon Mary Duke before he dies.

Then after a while a wes bit of humanity came to Bertha. The little one like all of its kind needed home, food and clothing. It was natural to turn to its father at this point. Harvey didn't seem to care about keeping the rapacious stomach of the youngster filled or its pink body clothed in even the customary red flannel ulster, nor give it a home to be carried in at night and fed with milk and paregorie. These things did not seem to carried in at night and fed with milk and paregoric. These things did not seem to be to the mind of the recreant Harvey and so Mrs. Longenbaugh the mother of Bertha sought help from the majesty of the law. On April 12, 1892, she came from North Industry and apearing before Justice Ringle, swore out an affidavit charging Harvey M. A Columbus Paper Says Creditors Want the Ex-Prescher.

The Columbus World of Wenesday cor The Columbus World of Wenesday contained a large five line head, double leaded, half column article, in which it deals roughly with the Rev. Ex-Representative Edward E. Dresbach. The paper after reviewing his career in a rather sensational style from the time he entered the legislative hall to the present, states that he is now minus, having skipped, leaving legislative hall to the present, states that he is now minus, having skipped, leaving a host of creditors from tailors and haberdashers to landlords and washerwomen. From the tone of the article it would seem as if the ex-preacher had been flying high and had stuck almost everybody in Columbus for a bill of some some sort or other. The paper says he is supposed to have gone to Washington and that creditors will look him up.

It is born and a healthly little sister it is. The new lodge of Knights of Pythias for the town of Osnaburg was ushered into existence with much pomp at an early our this morning.

When the News-Democrat went When the News-Democrat went to press Wednesday evening the Rank of Esquire was being administered to the twenty-eight gentiemen who had been conducted through the mysteries of the preceeding degrees. The great lesson taught them in this degree left an im-pression that will be carried with them until eternity. By rushing business all were put through this degree before supper time, at which an adjournment was taken. The candidates then proceeded to the Hotel Correct where the Hotel Conrad, where a fine supper was served, and, after satisfying the wants of the inner man, they took fresh courage the inner man, they took freen courage and were more eager to mount the ladder that leads to Pythian fame.

The work in the Rank of Esquire was presided over by Brother Willis in an able manner. He was assisted by Brothers McQuern, Shoof, Cook and Bour, who filled their stations in a highly granifying manner to all those present. In this Kank the Canton Uniformed D vision made a splendid appearance in their part of the splendid appearance in their part of the floor work, every step and movement being made with clock-like precision. The entire team work was of the fluest order and the ceremonies were most impressive. THE AMPLIPED WORK.

When "Climax" entered the lodge room last night the large ball was completely bordered with a sea of smiling faces, the good word having evidently been passed good word having evidently been passed around that something of unusual importance was on the programme. Among those present were Knights from Massil ion, Alliance, Akron, Minsrva, New Berin, Navarre, Mogadore, Mt. Eaton and other places. Adjoining Deputy Grand Chancellor Criss sat a Brother Knight with slivery bair, he being none other than Colonel Minchell of Cleveland, wearing the honors of high rank in the Uniform Divisions.

Divisions.

When all was in readiness for the last degree, Bro. Cochran was presiding, with Bros. Lohman as V. C., Bolton as P., Kingsnorth as P. C., and C. Shoof as M. at The usual formalities were then gone through with, following which came one of the events of the evening. Bro. Bolton who had charge of all the floor work, now introduced his first team. Before their regular work commenced Bro. Bolton put this team through intricate marches and figures never witnessed in or out of a lodge room, no matter where. It showed plainly that he is a drill master without a peer. The work was so finely executed that is had to be repeated in order to satisfy those who had not been admitted before. Bro. Bolton was assisted in the work by the Massillon division and it was also demonstrated that their commander was well up to his business. It was impossible to get a full list of those who to a part in the silent drill, but if this criticism should meet their individual eyes lat them take it for granted that all that has been said refers to themselves. Bro. Bow acted as King for this team and his work needs no comment. In the second team Bro. Kings north occupied the place acceptably, and in the last team the mantles were worn by Bro. Willis, whose work all round is of the highest order. The work of Bro. Shoof as Master-at-Arms was also worthy of praise. In conducting these weary pil-grims to Knighthood, Bros. Criss, Bow, Bolton, Fries, Weybrecht and others took parts assigned them in a masterly manner and added much to the impressiveness of the ceremonies.

After the work was finished a lunch wa served in the lodge room, a knightly greeting having already been extended to the brothers of Osnaburg Lodge No. 570. From the material of its make up and general appearance of things it is plain to be seen that the new lodge will be a success. "CLIMAX."

And Finds Her in a Jefferson Street Ranch -The Pather, Daughter and a Girl Companion Start Out and Get Very Drunk-The Girls Locked up.

The Girls Looked up.

The scene was at the Valley depot last evening about 6 o'clock. There were three in the crowd. Two girls, pretty of face and the possessors of neat forms, shown up to good advantage by dresses in which red played an important part. The smaller of the two, a little blonds, was the wearer of a dress which Ravachol would likely have hailed with a shriek of delight The third in the trio was an oldish man who was in fact the father of the larger of the two girls. The whole party was under the two girls. The whole party was under the influence of something stronger than cream sods, and would careen around like chickens in a wind storm. The little bloude, mercover seemed to have some difficulty with her hosiery, for ever and anon, she would stoop and give her skirt a hitch revealing to the stares of the pass-er by a shapely limb encased in a black clock worked stocking. The girls and old man were having a real nice chipper time. At last the old man taking in the full gravity of the situation went to the telephone and called up police headquarters, asking for a couple of officers to come down as there were a pair of drunk giris there. Officers Romey and Brisbia went to the Valley depot in response to the call and brought the girls to and gave them guarters in the formula up and gave them quarters in the female ward of the city prison. The larger said ber name was Eisie Dale and her home in ber name was Eisie Dale and her home in Minerva. The smaller one gave her name as Gertie Post and her voting place as Massilion. The girls took their incarcer-ation in violent shape, weeping many copious weeps. The father of Eisie said he had come up from Minerva to rescue his daughter from a life of shame in Quigley's place on Jefferson street. He had gone down there he said in the morn-ing and asked for his daughter, but they denied that she was there. He went back enjed that she was there. He went had later and found the girl in the house. In company with the two girls Peter started out for sight-seeing. It didn't appear to the best advantage for the father to be jagged, but just the same he took quite a liking for the beer his daughter pand for.

KINTZ'S KICK.

Capital and Labor Discussed-A Plain Plan of Philosophy That He Who Reads May Understand-How Interest Eats Us All Up.

EDITOR NEWS-DEMOCRAT:-As the representatives of industry have organized a Trades Assembly in Canton, I have a word to say on the subject, if allowed, and the public can take it for what it is worth.

We find in society two conflicting interests, each trying to educate public senti-ment, namely, labor and capital or rather we find labor trying to disabuse the publi mind of ideas that are detrimental to the well being of society, ideas instilled into the public mind by education in the interests of capital.

As capital has always controlled education, and it is only within the last few centuries that governments have taken ny cognizance whatever of the laborer as social factor.

What is it that builds up the wealth and business prosperity of any nation or com-munity? It is evidently the industries of that nation or community. It is evidently the wealth that industry produces. Now what is it that paralyzes industry and impoverishes nation or community? It is just as evidently capital. But the ques-tion will be asked, how can wealth sustain industry and capital paralyze it? In order to understand this we must know the difference between wealth and capital.

While all capital is wealth, all wealth is not capital, by any means. Capital is that part of wealth, that men use to increase their wealth. While wealth that is t capital is the wealth that increase their comfort, or pleasure.

A man has one bundred dollars that he uses as capital. It benefits no one but the owner, because it gathers wealth faster than industry produces it. A man has one hundred dollars that he uses to increase his comfort or pleasure, that sus-tains industry and business, because it mingles with them without absorbing their wealth. The same is true of all other amounts larger or smaller. Capital paralyzes industry and business because it gathers the wealth of society faster than industry produces it. We have in the nation and in every community, two kinds of capital employed in industry and in business, domestic and foreign. Domestic capital simply robs its neighbor, while foreign capital withdraws the wealth of a nation or community faster than it is produced, and impower ishes the nation or community in which it is employed. Capital may and does start industries, but by absorbing the wealth faster than it is produced, industries are eventually suspended, cuts are made in wages, and many operators are driven to the wall.

This is why 28 out of every thirty business men are driven to the wall. Now in order to show the effect of capital on industry and business, suppose that when God turned Adam out of the Garden of Eden 3,000 years ago, he had fixed Adam's salary at $25,000 a year and preserved his life until today, and suppose Adam had saved every cent of his salary, he would now only have $150,000000. While we have several men in the United States reported to be worth one hundred million. On the other hand suppose Adam had saved $1,000 of his salary every year, for one bundred years to use as capital, then put it on interest at six per cent, and had put it on interest at six per cent, and had carefully kept principal and interest compounded as capitalists do, what would he have today? As money at six per cent doubles itself six times every one hundred years (figure it up) the amount would be so great that if it could be computed at all, all the wealth that the industries of the world produce today, would not begin to pay the interest. And capital in other hands, has the same effect on industry that it would have in the hands of Adam. I believe that man as a rule would rather do right than wrong, if it paid as well, but history and experience prove that as a rule, men will do wrong rather than right if it pays better; especially if the wrong is sanctioned by public scattment. A man that has one hundred dollars espital, is as anxious to double it, as the man that has a million. And he wants all the interest he can get, no matter what effect it may have on others. I am not certain but capital should be I am not certain but capital should be paid for its services when engaged in business or industry, but when by education or legislation, it becomes enabled to draw the wealth of society, faster than industry can produce it, it is then time for labor, and business, to call a halt, and if they don't call a halt, the Anarchists will. The idea that capital is necessary to sustain industry is parallel to the idea that tariff is necessary to protect industry. Both rob the masses and impoverish the nation by making millionares and tramps.
